

In The Claims:

1(Original). A device for providing a user with secure access to a network resource, comprising:

a first module for authenticating a user to said device;

a second module responsive to said first module for providing the user with access to the network resource using a network resource password unknown to the user.

Claims 2-49(Cancelled).